Details: Pete started playing guitar at the age 17. By the age 19 he found himself playing the bars around the Niagara region in largely forgettable metal bands. After 5 years of that the scene became redundant and Pete needed change. That came by way of trading his Marshall stack for a plane ticket and an acoustic and it was off to the west coast. Squamish, British Columbia. There, fueled by drugs, alcohol and natural beauty he found a voice through song. Three chords and a butchered melody, hell tell you, Describing his song style. Now he is back in the Niagara region to tell his story. And perhaps to gain a few more. This time without the drugs or natural beauty. Always writing, rarely improving and never perfect. He dont like frills. Loves his friends and always seeks a positive inspiration. Never turns down a pint and vows one day to write a song about blue jeans. Pete loves his home town and just released his 3rd EP. He once owned a 69 dart but that didnt last long. If you ask him to write his bio it would look like this: Birth, a quick wade through the dogs and the vomit and eventually death.
