Visit bluesky5for more information about the band, or check out what the critics are saying about Tin Goose Jump: "Blue Sky 5, the Baltimore-Washington swing ensemble, named its debut release after the prototype for the 1947 Tucker Torpedo, 'the car of tomorrow, today.' Had dashboard CD players been in vogue back then, the music on 'Tin Goose Jump' would have made for a perfectly pitched accessory. Credit bandleader Craig Gildner for getting the tone right." --Mike Joyce, The Washington Post "Fifteen super cuts of jazzy swing in a fresh style powered by the songs, piano vocals of Craig Gildner. Tommy Greco (tenor sax) Brett Lemley (trumpet) provide ear catching solos while Glen Oliff (bass) James Peachey (drums) anchor the cuts with authority. Special guests Cassie Miller (vocals) Halley Shoenberg (clarinet) add superlative dimension. Jump on this one!" --Bo Lewis, host of "Big Band Dance Party," WNAV, Annapolis, MD
