This music is an exuberant collision of electro beats and blues undertones, a synergy of electro punk where anything goes. 11 MP3 Songs in this album (43:17) ! Related styles: ELECTRONIC: Electro, BLUES: Electric Blues People who are interested in New Order The Human League Fischerspooner should consider this download. Details: The Carbon Factory idea was first born in November 2002 in Portsmouth (U.K). Ex techno D.J. Steve started working on the music and the lyrics for So cold at that time and was then joined by a girl called Zo shortly after. The original version of the song was finished in summer 2003 and a video for the track was completed later that winter. The song was released via a local record shop Reflex records and the duo appeared on local television to promote the CD and the video. The video was shown up to three times daily on this channel. Unfortunately, Zo left the project shortly after due to other commitments and Steve moved his concentration into producing music and acting for a soap opera that appears on Skys Community channel in the UK and the Internet. Carbon Factory lay dormant. In February 2006, Steve ended his brief TV career and decided to concentrate on Carbon Factory again. Laura joined him in March and contributed backing vocals on Something wrong. This new lease of life resulted in the debut album (at the time unreleased and untitled) being written and (mostly!) recorded by the end of 2007. So cold was given a revamp and new tracks were added including Need the money, Lapse, "Meaningless", Dont want u back and Timewasters. Over 2007 and 2008 the band played live many times at the main venues in their home city. In 2008, Steve was joined by Veronica to make up the latest Carbon Factory line up. Veronica (aka Veri) contributed vocals on the tracks 'Moodswings' and 'Off day' The long awaited debut album is now finished and ready for human consumption! (enjoy)
