He began song writing in 1974, and has been with it ever since. David got introduced to music at a young age by his Grandfather who played Austrian polka's by ear on his button accordion, as well as from his mom who played records by Ray Charles, Nat King Cole, and many others. He was a music major at SIU in Carbondale Illinois, and started performing during that time. He is trained in Clarinet, Oboe, Piano and voice. His interest in creating music came from a point of where music was heading during the late 70's. His influences include Harry Chapin, Crosby/Stills/Nash/Young, Leo Kottke, Doc Watson, Strawbs, and just about anyone who has made it playing acoustic guitar. David is currently working in the studio on his new CD to be released in December04/January05 time frame. David also studied African Drumming with Master Drummer Adetunji Joda, was a scuba instructor, an archer, a computer professional, and is currently one of a very small group of Shao-lin Kung Fu Masters (6th degree Black belt) on the planet. Makeastar: David is a good singer, nice pitch and character. David has a great sense of melody, rhythm, and harmony, the three main elements of music. David creates songs that clearly come from the heart and has the ability to touch the heart in others. Splendid Ezine: Is Actually pretty Good. It's nice to know that there are still artists out there like Theroff -- who, on Acoustic Demo, shows that the last three decades have not been wasted. Indiebiz: David's music is known as heartfelt, but can sometimes be almost hypnotic.
