Wes Nancy Ruybal (pronounced roo-Bell) have been performing their own brand of Western Americana, Cowboy Poetry and Gospel across the country since 2000. With a pure uncomplicated style, they present songs, stories and poems about the American West and its people from the modern day working cowboy back to the early settlers. Wes grew up a horseback, cowboying with his father and brothers. His familys cowboy heritage dates back to the settling of the San Luis Valley in Colorado in the 1680s. His poetry and songs reflect his many experiences as a working cowboy, including the folks hes met and places hes worked, as well as rich and fascinating true tales of his life. Nancy, a country girl from Ohio, began writing and performing folk music at age fourteen, later traveling across the country playing many different venues from Ohio to Texas, California to Arizona. When they came together, it was only natural their music and poetry would speak of our great American Heritage, the settling of the West and Wess own cowboy experiences in the modern world. A Katy Creek concert is an exciting adventure of life and love, laughter and tears with a dash of murder, mayhem and mystery you wont want to miss. A review; Katy Creek (Wes Nancy Ruybal), western performers from Arizona, have begun to build a solid reputation for putting on finely-tuned performances that show confidence and maturity not only in their playing but in their stage presence as well. Nancy's heartfelt vocals place her as the band's centerpiece. After a song finds its way through her wonderful vibrato to your ears, you are completely satisfied. Her lead and rhythm guitar work is noteworthy as well, and Nancy has become a force to be reckoned with as a songwriter. Her lyrics reveal that not only does a very sensitive person lie behind that charming smile of hers, but also a girl who knows how to appreciate the beauty of creation and the depth, complexity, wonderment, joy, and sadness that marks the lives of those who walk amidst it. The songwriting of Wes Ruybal evidences a writer who has lived the cowboy life - the REAL cowboy life. This isn't "stuff we already know", as Billy Joe Shaver wrote, from watching television and reading books. This is stuff that's been lived. It's authoritative. ... one is struck by the simplicity with which Wes handles the strings - a simplicity that holds onto the beauty of a song while complementing, rather than overshadowing, the singing of his counterpart. The only question remaining is whether folks attend Katy Creek concerts because they love the music or because they love the performers. After listening to this CD, I'm sure you'll agree with me when I say, "It's both!" Marvin O'Dell Around the Campfire HeartlandPublicRadio.org 2007 WMA Disc Jockey of the Year
