MP3 Songs HIP HOP/RAP: Hardcore Rap, BLUES: Rhythm Blues Details: PAK Rich with strong catchy hooks, clever verses, and a memorable voice, Pak's songs demand your full attention and keep you anxiously waiting for more. His extraordinary voice has been described as so soulful that it literally touches the heart. Pak began writing poetry in the late 1980's; as his love for rap grew, so did his skills as an artist. He joined the musical group B.F.I (Black Folks Infinity) with whom he enjoyed both rapping and singing. In 1995, B.F.I changed their name to Fflame and signed with Robbins entertainment. Shortly after, Pak embarked on a solo career and was featured on Fflame's single "Clap Ya Hands". Both Pak and Fflame have opened together for several artists including the late Notorious B.I.G., George Clinton, Too Short, Immature, Snoop Dogg, Changing Faces, Montel Jordan, and comedian D.L. Hughley and LLoyd Banks from G-Unit. Additionally, Pak sang lead in the musical group Full Deck, they enjoyed success being featured on the remix single, "How Much Can A Brotha Take?", by Top Authority. On July 16, 2002, Pak received an Honorable Mention in the John Lennon song writing --contest. He has completed videos for the songs "P.A.K., As I, and 1-900-Tallulah", which is also the score for a short movie by Gabriel Guerrero. Pak recently wrote and composed songs for Quinton (Rampage) Jackson and Kevin Randleman, which are being used as their theme music during Pride Fighting Championships. The songs have found a strong Japanese audience and have played for Japanese audiences numbering over 67 thousand people. Pak has also shot a video for the Pride organization, which will air January 2, 2004 on Pay-Pre-View. Pak's unique style of blending streetwise lyrics with a twist of soulful singing is that hot new sound hip-hop. (This album is also on AppleiTunes, Napster, Rhapsody, eMusic and BuyMusic just to name a few). Check out: Blade 2000 Welfed on cdbaby The Faculty members Strong affiliation (Sahlid)
