Details: Bsendorfer Artist Alan Roubik has produced more than a dozen recordings, as well as music videos, commercials and film score. Austrian piano manufacturer Bsendorfer offers their most prestigious endorsement to only a select few pianists and composers in the world. Alan now joins the ranks of master composers including Franz Liszt, Frdrich Chopin, Johann Strauss and Johannes Brahms. Alan was a child prodigy, having played his organ keyboard by ear at the age of 3. Music remained a hobby until a chance meeting with the legendary producer and artist manager, Joe Gottfried, who told Alan after listening to three original compositions that, you need to be in this business! Mentored by Joe, Alan established his own record label (Roubik Records) in 1992 as a launching pad for his own music. His first recording, entitled "Promises", was a hit on over 150 Contemporary Jazz and Adult Contemporary radio stations in the US and abroad. The popularity of this record lead to the production of the music video "Promises," co-produced by famed director John Landis. The video was a success and regularly aired on such programs such as MTV, Star TV Asia and MOR Music. Alan is considered as one of the most recognized and respected "healing music" artist and producer in the world. His first healing music recording Hado Music (a.k.a. The Four Seasons) fetched an unprecedented, demand-driven retail price of $100 per CD in Japan, which earned a place in the National Archives of Japan. Scientifically tested and endorsed by an independent research laboratory in Tokyo by Dr. Masaru Emoto, Alans music is said to have the most healing properties of any modern music. His music is used and recommended by doctors, professional athletes and trainers, health, fitness and yoga instructors, as well as spiritual healers.
