While the human migration research of the past 15 years proves, without a doubt, that every person shares a common genetic link to the original Eve, there also is no human without a genetic mix. (see genetic links in mixicanwebsite). In other words, purebreds of any type, thank God, do not exist. This not only is extremely healthy, but also essential for our species. The further we develop away from the original ancestral line, the further removed from inbred mutations that weaken our species. Given time, and continued cross cultural socialization, nature will select the strongest attributes from a larger genetic pool, thereby increasing our ability to survive and better adapt to the environment. Additionally, improved communications, global commerce and faster travel have accelerated this human integration process. Blessed with our mixed ancestry, each human has the I can ability to self actualize and reach their potential. As Mixicans, we all share the same color, brown, with different hues to celebrate our shared hue-manity. The Mixican Project seeks to expand our ocular vision, such that more visual information will be diverted to pass through our hearts and open minds prior to reaching our decision and action center. In this way, we hope to reshape the EQ curve and bypass the stereotype and discrimination filters so destructive and unfair to the brothers and sisters of our extended family. The Mixican Project strives to re-focus attention on human similarities rather than differences while still embracing the individual. Factually, all people are Shades Of Brown, (S.O.B.) and belong to One Human Race. Our music now launches the beginning of a unification movement with a renewed focus on our brotherhood in the human family, improving character, becoming a better person, and embracing personal responsibility. Our intent is not to deny mans historical inhumanity to his fellow man, by all ethnicities. Rather, the Mixican Project strives to draw a line in the sand, a new starting point if you will, from which to formulate a renewed effort and opportunity for all. This music represents our first step in that direction. We understand this is an uphill climb with many obstacles, but it is a beginning nonetheless. Like many men, I am truly colorblind. This may seem an ironic anecdote, but it could not be more appropriate, particularly relative to this endeavor. To my fellow Mixlcans, I send you this message of unity, love and hope.
