Demian has been a vocal soloist since age twelve. Her voice has been compared to flute, harp and that of angels. "Future Song", Demian's first song, was the result of an intense two-year journey of healing from childhood abuse; a life-time journey of reclaiming her true voice. "Future Song" set the tone and created a vision of purpose for all her subsequent songs, which took an additional fifteen years to live and to write. Demian is the lyricist and composer of melodies for DreamSinger. She took an active role in crafting, mixing and producing the individual songs for "For the Sake of Love", and co-produced the CD with Stacey. Stacey Young has been writing songs and performing in various bands since his early teens. He is a gifted multi-instrumentalist. Stacey plays keyboards, guitar, bass and drums, to name a few, and played every type of instrument, except for oboe and flute on "For the Sake of Love". Stacey composes, arranges, records and produces in his one-man digital and analog recording studio, Axis Studios, in Wrightsville PA, with over 25 years experience. "For the Sake of Love" was entirely recorded, mixed, produced and mastered in Stacey's studio. DreamSinger performs in churches, house concerts, healing circles and events for various issues that range from victim's rights and women's empowerment to spirituality, peace and caring for the environment. DreamSinger offers creative presentations, involving the spoken word, movement and song, invoking an atmosphere of intimacy and engaging the audience. Demian has a special "heart" connection with her mother's birthplace, China, and with Japan, where her mother was raised, and where Demian spent two years as a young child. She has been interviewed by Radio Free Asia and written up in various Asian publications. DreamSinger is committed to helping others find their true voice, to singing the healing journey and celebrating the human spirit.
