The four guys met in a performing group called The Young Americans. They toured all over the world performing in some of the largest and most prestigious venues in the US, Canada, Germany, England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, Holland, and Japan. During the years of touring they formed a friendship and a passion for performing with each other and for writing original music. They currently reside in Southern California where they write, record and prepare for upcoming tours. Blake O'Brien is a singer and guitar player. Blake is from Traverse City, Michigan where his mom claims that hes been singing since he was born. Blake started writing music when he was 10 years old with his best friend Grady. They called them selves Red Hot and wrote a song titled insert song title. Although Blake has always been singing, he didnt learn to play the guitar until a few years ago. John Humphries is the drummer who sings. Born in Philadelphia and raised in South Jersey, he started singing at 9 years old, taught himself the drums at age 11, and has been a performer all his life. He is heavily into writing (stories, screenplays, and music) and feels he is living a dream now that he is with his band mates in RFO. Brett Maline, on lead guitar is from Nebraska. Hes proud to be a Husker fan, growing up and living in Minden, Nebraska most of his life. Along with band, Brett takes classes at Groundlings, an improv acting school here in Hollywood, CA. He loves playing basketball, playing halo (xbox), and sitting at the beach with nothing to do. Marty Sage, on lead bass is the oldest member of the band, but proud to say hes the only one to go to college. After graduating with a degree in Nursing, Marty joined The Young Americans. Marty says his passion is for helping people and that if the band was to ever break-up, he would go into health care.
