France Gall Charlotte Gainsbourg should consider this download. Details: In a hurry, she made her way past the booksellers, glancing at the ferries that were lazily floating down the Seine, turned onto Boul St.

Mich and wished she had more time to take in the fresh scent exuding from the march des fleurs, just about to close. She turned again to cut through one of the small streets of St. Germain, smiled when she passed the legendary chansonniers house, imagining what it was like being there a few decades ago, smoking and drinking and playing music day and night. Only a few more corners, close to Jardin de Luxembourg, and she ducks into an inconspicuous doorway. No sign announces the venue, and the building is just as bourgeois and 17th century as those around it. But as she goes downstairs she can hear the crowd and feel the excitement. Yes, everyone is already on stage. The Magicien catches sight of her and winks. Then he turns, and with its characteristic sigh, the accordion stretches to begin its longing melody, the bass kicks in and before the drums set out to groove, she has embraced the mic and her airy voice fills the room. LInconnue de Venise (vocals) le Magicien aux Yeux Verts (guitars, keyboards) are proud to be playing with some of the worlds most distinguished musicians: Brett Simons Bass Roger

King Jr. Drums Rodney DAssis Percussion Peter Adams Accordion, Piano, Keyboards Julian Coryell

Fictionesque surf to loungy dreamscapes, Vieniste brings its own unique sound to French Pop, mixing accordion, baritone guitar, percussion under a fragile, emotive vocal with tongue-in-cheek lyrics and compositions. Let the debut EP take you on a ride; a full-length album is coming to conjure your senses.
