You experience her music and you discover her essence as an artist. Music is the soul of life and the melody that encourages our hearts to dance, she says. In her debut album, The Fall, Charlotte taps into the journey that is our imagination. Her music is poetry in motion and food that feeds the souls of her listeners. The story begins with her kindergarten rendition of the Beatles' Good Day Sunshine. Instantly drawn to the world of performance, she joined gospel choirs and performed in churches as well as on television. She performed in music halls and lead musical worship services. After graduating from Florida's IMI School of Music and Ministry, one of her first solo recordings received radio airplay in Texas. She had now graduated to the level of a full-fledged singer/songwriter. Charlotte continued to play the coffee house circuit and countless venues in Texas. Her band, Fields Without Fences, developed quite a regional following and she soon embarked upon the next phase of her career -- a move to Music City, USA (Nashville) and the prospect of further artistic growth and exposure. A Nashville club regular, Charlotte has also appeared on ABC-TV's Good Morning America and continues to perform to a growing audience of loyal fans. Having emerged victorious in a Battle of the Bands sponsored by Bud Light and FM100, she has also caught the attention of top music industry executives. Charlotte performed at SESAC's Writers On the Storm Showcase in New York City. This event followed her signing with SeaBright Records. Principals in SeaBright include Burt Conrad and the renowned Nile Rogers. SeaBright's first order of business was the re-release of The Fall. The Fall is now being played on radio stations across North America and adding stations daily. The Fall can be purchased at music stores and online. Charlotte is currently in the studio working on a new album, more details to follow. Listen to her music and you will agree with those who appreciate her voice and a heart felt writing style characterized by musical hooks and lyrical statements that appeal to the soul in all of us.
