Cancin Mandala features a number of special musical guests, three wonderful singers, and a nice and varied textural palette. An important and active member of the emerging new Colombian music scene, Coba is a New York-based ensemble featuring compositions and arrangements by guitarist Sebastin Cruz. Since 2001 Coba has been a platform to explore new approaches to traditional Afro-Colombian music through original songwriting and un-traditional instrumentation, offering a very personal and fresh take on a community's ancient and profound legacy. Since moving to New York in 1997, Sebastin has become an active member of the Colombian music scene in New York performing regularly with traditional and contemporary Colombian music ensembles including La Cumbiamba Eney, Pablo Mayors Folklore Urbano -appearing on their CDs- with Clsicos del despecho en la voz de Luca Pulido, and with Coba. He is also musical director and arranger for Luca Pulidos Colombian music project Palenque. These diverse projects, from traditional to jazzy to experimental, have greatly inuenced Sebastians exploration in ways of reinterpreting and establishing a personal relationship with Colombian, South American and American traditions. Coba has been heard live at BAM Cafe, Culture Fest in Battery Park, The Knitting Factory, Galapagos Artspace, Satalla and Queens Museum of Art among others.
