The crowd, the Band, and Latina, are all into it; this is what Rock is all about. A high school graduate at the age of fifteen, Latina's creativity doesn't stop with her music. When Latina is not recording or performing, she is writing. She's not only writing music. She's writing books. Latina finished two novels from the age of 14 through 18. One is a science fiction thriller entitled "Clone Alone". There is a link to "Clone Alone" at SoFineMusic.com. Check it out. Latina's second book entitled "Hope For Sleep, (Confessions Of An Insomniac)" will be published soon. Her current project is a collection of short children's stories that she has been creating since the age of seven and a collage of urban legends and true scary stories, based on the events of her grandparent's life. Latina's solo debut CD only gave a hint of what was yet to come. Now with the release of her second CD Latina has proven she is a true musical artist. Her varied influences make her a powerhouse writer and performer with her own unique sound. Now that she owns the trademark to her name, Latina is ready to take her place in the international music scene. She made her actual recording debut at the age of two with her brothers and sister in the singing group "The Future". She comes from a family of nine children who are all singer/songwriters. They all follow in the footsteps of their parents who have been performing since they were children. Latina, with The Future, released the hit single "Mamma's Waitin' For Elvis To Come Back." They suddenly found themselves performing as the youngest group to open a concert at Denver's McNichol's Sports Arena. Their debut release led to tours for McDonald's Corporation, The United Way, and Children's Hospital. The Future wrote and recorded "Don't Take It Out On Us", a song to raise awareness of child abuse. Their song "My dad is a soldier for the U.S.A." was played over the Armed Forces Radio for our soldiers during Operation Desert Storm. Performances of this song never leave a dry eye in the audience. They were acknowledged by President George Bush Sr. thanking them for being such great young Americans and remembering our troops. Latina is only eighteen but she is a seasoned pro in the music industry. While all four members of The Future have all went on to do their own thing they still come together from time to time and perform as a family. Their father makes the guitar sing. He solos with the guitar behind his head. Their mother is an awesome lead singer and writer. All of the brothers and sisters take their turn shining in the spotlight as they sing, perform, and write. Their CD's are available at CDBaby.com. This young artist really want's to make a difference. Her strong faith in God has brought her to where she is today. She believes that she is truly blessed to have such a great life, great family, and love of music. This artist will touch your heart in more ways then one. From the moment you first meet her, you will not only be mesmerized by her talent and beauty but also by her heart and her love of life. She is looking forward to breaking into modeling and acting. She has performed in many plays but movies are a must! She holds high respect for singers and musicians who have made a smooth transition into film. Latina also has a great love for the theatre and Broadway. She is very versatile and thinks outside the box. Latina's musical influences include Green Day, Nine Inch Nails, The Beatles, Smashing Pumpkins, Amy Lee, Queen, Harry Nilsson, My Chemical Romance, The Used, Avril Lavigne, Alanis Morissette, The Killers, Weezer, Fallout Boy, and many others. Latina was born and raised in Colorado. She's an All-American girl who writes and performs great rock music. She loves being a trendsetter. Latina is definitely not a follower. She's a leader whose music will encourage many young artists and entertain her fans with a never-ending supply of inspiring and hard hitting songs.
