Southern California pop from the Pacific shores of Santa Barbara 10 MP3 Songs POP: California Pop, ROCK: 70's Rock Details: That "Southern California" sound; how do you capture the essence it conveys? It's probably best illustrated by the musical giants who shaped and defined this unique genre. From West Coast artists like Brian Wilson to the U.K./West Coast hybrid of Fleetwood Mac, this identifiable yet illusive musical color is the prominent tonal shade found within the songs of Christopher Zerbe. Self described as "organic pop", Christopher writes songs that tie a connection between the artists that have lead him through his musical past to the musician he's become today. The writing, production, engineering, performing, and mixing duties of this debut album were accomplished by Christopher using an array of guitars, vintage effect pedals, Steinberg recording software and Apple computer technology. "This was an interesting record to make as its composite is an amalgamation of the oldest and newest tools available to the modern musician."
