Formed in 1996 in Amherst, MA Joint Custody went into the studio to record a demo. The demo evolved into their first full-length CD, "the lows, the mids, and the highs" and was released in March of '97. With all four members in school, the band concentrated on local venues and festivals, honing their live act, and selling their CD. After selling 1,000 copies of their debut album and becoming a favorite of the annual college festivals, the band went back into the studio to record their second album, "orange." However, it is their dedication to live performances that won them the Best Local Band award for 1999 from the UMASS Daily Collegian (Amherst). It has also gained them greater exposure as a regional finalist in the 1999 Ernie Ball Battle of the Bands - a nationally sponsored event. Joint Custody celebrated the release of their second CD just two weeks before winning the 2000 Five College Area Battle of the Bands. With seven years of music behind them, the members of Joint Custody look forward to the future and to taking on the world with "Anthropic." The new album combined
