I, Genghis Khan, Lord of Tartary, do declare that I shall grant half of my Khanate, to the Man who can tell me Forty Fables. Masguda presents music on Tartar spiritual topics. 17 MP3 Songs WORLD: Middle East, FOLK: Modern Folk Details: Masguda's disc features seventeen original instrumental compositions and ballads for both classical and modern instruments. This new collection was inspired by folk music from Tartar (Tatar) elders as well as shaman medicine and sound healers in the region. For those new to Euro-Asian music - the "Land of the Tartars (Tatars)" was centrally located at the crossroads of trade between all cultures of the continents. It was a rest stop near the Silk Road. Genghis Khan also included this land in his empire. Rosette Gault, American author, critic, and visual artist says of these modern works with ancient roots: "Listen for a rich texture of diverse yet complementary melodies woven together in harmony as carefully crafted as the highest quality great grandmothers lace. These haunting and lyric melodies will lift you up and away to places of deep sentiment and return you back home refreshed from the visit." Masguda Shamsutdinova is a famous Tartar (Tatar) composer. She was born in Bashkortstan. She graduated from the Kazan State Conservatoire in the Republic of Tatarstan. Masguda's profession: she is a folk-modern composer. For 20 years she researches folk music, magic practice and color symbols of Tartar (Tatar) nation. She defended the PhD Thesis at St. Petersburg State University. The subject is: "Maulid-Bairam (Prophet Muhammad's birthday celebration) among the Middle-Volga-Region Muslims". Masguda lives in Seattle, WA USA.
