"can invent an entirely roots-oriented sound, which sounds all at once like cutting-edge folk rock." - Muse Magazine 6 MP3 Songs FOLK: Modern Folk, POP: Folk Pop Details: "[Dami's] highly passionate percussive style is so well-spoken that the two instruments seem to be singing to one another...All the tunes are impeccably performed with that strangely full sound that they have...Listening to it is an experience you won't want to pass up." - Joseph Prusch, Muse Magazine. JULES Julia Pfeiffer is a Boston native who has spent the last four years at Ithaca College in Ithaca, NY completing a degree in music as a classical guitar/voice major. Her guitar technique and songwriting style is a mixture of classical, rock, and folk, and has been influenced by the music of Simon and Garfunkel, K's Choice and the Indigo Girls. She and her musical counterpart, Dami Noah have created their own style, which fuses together these different genres of music. DAMI Dami Noah is a native of Lagos, Nigeria, who emigrated to America in 1996. He then attended Ithaca College in Ithaca, NY where he earned a bachelors degree and met Julia Pfeiffer, his musical partner. Dami's influences, Fela Kuti, King Sunny Ade and Selif Keita, stem back to his West African roots. Through these influences, his music is highly rhythmic and percussive, creating new and innovative guitar sound
