They came together in London through meeting on the local scene (the Fiddlers Elbow, the Hampstead Horseshoe, the Black Horse) and since then have been working together on different projects including music, film poetry. From January 2005 singer/songwriter Paul van Gelder started visiting open mic sessions all over London playing his own material and cover versions, jamming with different musicians. It was close to home, upstairs at the Pentameter Theatre that he met Irish flute fiddle player Peter McNamara. Peter PvG played several gigs as a duo in Aldeburgh and London before American percussionist Danyael Davis joined in February 2006. Now we have teamed up with Ben Goldberg on stand-up bass and Robert Sean Murphy on electric guitar plus Laoude concertina. Collectively they bring to the table a unique fusion of instruments, influences and styles sure to lift spirits in one form or another. They are gigging their eclectic blend of Folk Roll, Celtic Pop, and World Beat with a distinctive flair all their own. Myspace :: myspace.com/tipsygypsiesband Official Site :: tipsygypsies
