BushWacked is a spoken word opera with free jazz accompaniment 7 MP3 Songs JAZZ: Free Jazz, SPOKEN WORD: With Music Details: "BushWacked", a spoken word opera, finds Mark Whitecage with a totally new Band, Concept, and Direction! In addition to West Coast electronic wizard Scott Steele on guitar combined with the keyboard artistry of Bill Larimer, Mark has added Perry Robinson's prize pupil Rozanne Levine on Alto Bb clarinets, with long-time collaborator Robert (Mike) Mahaffay on drums, to produce a hard-hitting and sometimes angry indictment of the Bush Crime Family, all without losing the sense of swing and intensity he is known for!! "Mark Whitecage knocks me out. He has achieved rare union of tradition and innovation all coupled with finesse and at times, raw muscle. He is a totally unique player who raises the spirits of rebellion, while at the same time lifting the music to a new plateau." (Tim Price) Saxophone Journal "The man is an absolute master of the alto saxophone and clarinet (not to mention a dab hand at electronics), and one of the finest and most original jazz composers in the world, and has been for years." - (Dan Warburton) Paris Transatlantic, Signal to Noise. Mark Whitecage (alto soprano saxophone, clarinet, electronics, composer) is an internationally-known musician who performs solo and with several ensembles ranging in size from duos to quintets. He has performed and recorded with a wide range of creative artists including The Nu Band, Anthony Braxton, Perry Robinson, Jeanne Lee, Gunter Hampel, Mario Pavone, Joe McPhee, William Parker, Dominic Duval, Marshall Allen and Steve Swell, in a career spanning four decades. Whitecage can be heard on over 50 recordings, a number of them award-winning. His release with his trio No Respect, self-titled No Respect - Duval / Rosen / Whitecage, was named one of 2003's Top Ten Recordings by Time Out New York's Steve Smith.
