Details: Alastair Greene is a guitarist/singer/songwriter founded out of Santa Barbara California who plays blues-influenced rock much in the same vein as, Rory Gallagher, Jimi Hendrix, Stevie Ray Vaughan, Johnny Overwinter Gov't Mule, and The Allman Brothers Band. Alastair can be heard on recordings by Alan Parsons, Aynsley Dunbar and countless independant artists. This is a LIVE CD from Winter of 2002 recorded unmediated to CD from the mixing board at an LA Club. QUOTES: "We hadn't planned on releasing a Live Record, however after I listened to the recording of this show I felt that the overall sound, energy level, and playing would be enjoyed by anyone looking for some raw, live, blues-rock." -From The Liner Notes "Greene is a fantastic blues guitarist with a preference for less well-known material, But, even in the midst of legendary tunes, he stood out and depicted a signature classic-rock sound. In fact, he's so good, his mentors would certainly approve." -Music Connection Magazine "Alastair Greene is a guitarist I enjoy listening to. Over the years I watched his playing mature into a distinctive style many try to achieve which contains the fire of Texas Blues. You will enjoy both his music and his energy." - Seymour Duncan "Alastair's a great cat. One of the best young rocking blues guitarists I've seen in a long time. Watch out for him." - James Shane, Canned Heat "Greene is a wonderful blues/rock player." -Vintage Guitar Magazine
