Continuing the tradition of mixing rock and electronica grooves pioneered in his 1st release "digThesis". visionEar's second release, "future sans" goes for an even bigger beat while tethering a rock edge into the mix. These arrangements reflect a growing 10 MP3 Songs ELECTRONIC: Experimental, ROCK: Instrumental Rock Details: Detroit performer/instrumentalist visionear releases second CD entitled "future sans" (future without). A vocal element presents itself on this latest release. These ten songs begin with the almost radio friendly hip-hip number "Futuristic Guy", unexpected vocal effects also on "Flight No." and "Fluten". These songs emerge one by one distinct from each other but always connected to their source. Plenty of fine electronica abounds here "Ambiene", "A1A" but, this is not just serious knob twiddling. The "guitar-tronica" tracks like "The Construct" or "Don't Cry" rock without end in this beaty but edgy framework. The strength of these arrangements is visionear's unique ability at combining rock and electronic elements. The soloing in "Black Box" (a Miles sort of improve jam) can hardly contain itself. "Future Sans" chooses to rock and groove. I can't imagine a future without it!
