Details: Inner Landscape, Amy Syd's debut CD which was released in December, 1999, is a collection of 12 original songs reflecting the artist's own journey in discovering herself. All songs were written, arranged and produced by Amy Syd. The music is heartwarming, with positive, uplifting messages. This CD could be placed in a genre all its own: theatrical folk. Amy Syd Babcock is a singer-songwriter with a background in musical theatre. Growing up in White Plains, New York, Amy studied flute, piano, voice and drama, including a stint in high school at the Juilliard School Pre-College Division and a degree in Theater Arts from the State University of New York at Fredonia. Amy started writing songs at 16. Now a homemaker and mother of two, she has discovered her niche - songwriting allows the freedom of self-expression combined with the talents of her heart: poetry, music and performance. Residing in the Boston area now, she feels privileged to be home with her children while exploring several different avenues for her songwriting - contemporary folk, instrumental, children's, pop ballad, and musical theatre.

QUOTES: "This is an easygoing effort of understood conflicts in life and love that mixes a traditional musical theater vocal in the folk/singer-songwriter genre. Interesting and sincere, and the recording and overall instrumentation is gorgeous." - earBuzz.com "Amy Syd deserves a wide audience". - Rachel Webb, The Westford Eagle
