Details: Love: I think that globally, right now, our culture is wounded deeply by the rift that comes from trying to compartmentalize our humanity. Trying to separate our spirits, bodies and minds, our feminine and masculine, our men and women. In reality that kind of separation is impossible. But our culture seems bent on convincing us that those fractures are not only possible, but desirable, especially when it comes to sexuality. We have ourselves (and our children) convinced that we can have sex without becoming emotionally and spiritually affected; invested. Just trying to live down to that is making us sick and crazy. My music in general, and Dawns Rise in particular, is made to try and shed light on the deception. To help close and heal those woundsin defense of Love. A wonderful singer-songwriter with an engaging presence both live and on record, Niki Andr is ready to take center stage. She makes a powerful impression with her soft voice. Her lyrics are not watered down for consumption but refreshing and nurturing for the soul. She is definitely proving, lyrically and vocally, to be what the industry is lacking.
