The soundtrack to the sell out theatre production of "The Bellydance Diaries" written by Daphne Pena. The traditional Egyptian ensemble is led by the talented and versatile percussionist Guy Schalom. 8 MP3 Songs WORLD: Middle East Traditional, WORLD: Belly Dancing Details: Israeli-born percussionist, dancer independent record producer Guy Schalom returns with another Baladi masterpiece. Combining fiery Arabic percussion solos, soulful, intricately woven accordion improvisations The Bellydance Diaries Soundtrack will make you want to dance non-stop. Baladi - the street music of Egypt - emerged in the early 20th Century through migration of rural musicians to the cities of Cairo Alexandria. This cultural collision exposed traditional folk musicians to a Western sensibility, creating a newly sophisticated hybrid genre. Baladi holds improvisation and interplay at its core. Guy Schalom is best known for his work with Klezmer-revivalists the Klezmer Alliance as well as The Klezmatics, David Krakauer and Egyptian stars Natacha Atlas, The Musicians Of The Nile and Mahmoud Fadl. In this ensemble, Guy unites some of Egypt's most renowned master musicians: including legendary accoirdionist Sheik Taha and Ney (Arabic flute) virtuoso Louai Elhenawi. Guys recent CD Baladi Blues was described by fROOTS magazine as Outstanding, fresh and compelling as well as technically superb.
