Drifting indie folk rock 11 MP3 Songs FOLK: Folk-Rock, COUNTRY: Alt-Country Show all album songs: Food, Booze, and Entertainment Songs Details: Regardless of whether singer/songwriter Adam Nations folk-rock outfit The Great Outdoors is performing as a five-piece ensemble, a moving trio, or even simply as a one-man-band solo act complete with kick drum and bass pedals, the outcome at the end of each live show is always the same: a room full of people stirred to laughter, moved to tears, and outright musically hypnotized by one of the premier acts in the country. As representative of this countrys heartland as the Canadian Shield from which he hails, Adam Nation has been making his living from the stage for over a decade now. Previously wowing audiences as the enigmatic frontman of Canadian indie-rock darlings Counterrevolutionaries, Nation has toured the country from end-to-end countless times, soaking in the ambiance and attitudes of those for whom he pours out his musical soul night after night. A friendly maritime legion hall; a rough and tumble oil field camp booze can; a worn and weathered prairie pub; a raucous and joyous west coast beer garden Nation has worked them all and more, and he has woven those experiences into the very fabric of his musical mosaic. Perhaps it is this gift that endears his art to so many. Joined by a rotating cast of some of Vancouvers finest musicians, including guitarists Steve Wells and Randy Forrester, bassist Craig McCaul, drummer Steve Wegelin, Juno-winners Jesse Zubot and Frazzie Ford, and trumpeter Bud Brodie, Nation continues to win audiences everywhere with his electric and eclectic tales and tunes. Whether touring in support of 2005s critically acclaimed A Scant Sixty-Three or 2007s chart-topping Food, Booze and Entertainment, capturing a live album in September of 07 at the Auditorium Hotel in Nanton, Alberta, or recording any of his four upcoming seasonally-themed EPs (one to be released every three months for the next year) at his East Vancouver-based East Van

Eden Studios, Nation and company are creating a whole lot more than just great music; they are creating a movement. Damn near an ism, if you will - that rare kind of ism wed all be better off to embrace. from Flamenco to steel guitar, Adam Nation shifts styles and instruments with natural ease as he maneuvers banjo and ukulele riffs around his tall and sometimes torrid tales FFWD (Calgary, Canada) so intimate and undeniably Canadian, its easy to close your eyes and feel the rocking chair beneath you, the heat of a fire on your face, and a merry group of friends crowded into a living room recording these folky songs... The Vancouver Sun drawling ode to the fine art of old fashioned songwriting wistful and weary, its good listening for a tired world. Spill (Toronto) Nation has found that seamless delivery that many musicians try their entire lives to achieve. Nerve Magazine (Vancouver) One of Canada's most charmingly quirky bands. The Record (Kitchener/Waterloo) The Great Outdoors fatigued but curious folk-rock should be checked out. The Globe And Mail
