At the end of World War II, a time of suspense and underground warfare rages between the various opposing camps in Palestine. The British Mandate is in its dying days, and within the Jewish population, the yearning to create a Jewish state is fermenting. The ground is ripe for activity by the Jewish underground to smuggle Holocaust survivors into Palestine against the British edict, which does not allow any immigration into the country. Opposing the Jewish underground, Arab terrorist groups are aiding the British in providing information on clandestine activities by Jews. In return, they receive generous payments and promises to supply them with arms. Against this background of the struggle between the Jewish undergrounds, the Arab adversaries, and the British government, love blossoms between Edna Aloni, whose two older brothers are leaders in the Jewish underground, and Sidna Ibn-Amrani, a young Arab and the son of a poor farmer. The chance meeting between the two and the tragic consequences of their love affair is the axis propelling this story of self-sacrifice and revenge, which spreads across the Atlantic Ocean to reach scenic San Francisco. Author Shoshana Eliahu, born and raised in Tel Aviv, Israel, came to the United States following her military service. She currently resides in the San Francisco

Bay Area, where she received her college degrees in creative writing. She has also written a one-woman play, "An Evening with Golda Meir," which ran for a year in San Francisco. Author: Eliahu, Shoshana
