Details: If you want a song that will get inside you and stay there, the Campaign is your band. Their sound is a collection of a wide range of influences, but the end product is something unique and special. The piano-based format is truly that, a base, and from that platform the Campaign jumps into some of the catchiest pop/rock sounds that are out there today. They are sometimes compared to artists like Ben Folds, Maroon 5, Travis, John Mayer, and The Fray, just to name a few, but they truly have a sound that is all their own. With his colorful and soulful vocal style, lead singer Tyler Wood puts a unique stamp on every song. Musically, Blaine Crews, Clayton Fike, Paul Jenkins and Tyler Wood are the essence of tightness, allowing their groove-centered sound to blossom right in front of your ears. In our age of watered-down and regurgitated pop, the Campaign offers something with lyrical depth and soul. In today's music, doing something hip usually means sacrificing passion and imagination, but not here. Try not to like it, they dare you.
