Related styles: NEW AGE: Ambient, WORLD: World Fusion Details: With the release of "eclectic," Dominic Mobilia has united keyboards, loops, samples and location recordings into a CD that is a multi-genre excursion. Currently, Dominic is a Vocal Music Teacher at Mary Louise Aiken Elementary School in West Hartford, CT where he also conducts the Aiken Elementary Chorus. While at the Hartt School of the University of Hartford as a music education major with a minor in vocal/choral music, he became interested in 20th century American orchestral literature and electronic composition. Having read selected chapters of the textbook An Eclectic Approach to Orff and Kodaly in the Elementary School as a requirement for an undergraduate music education class, he also became interested in the use of folk and multi-ethnic music as a vehicle to educate young music students. As a teen and young adult, he gained experience as a keyboardist in many pop, rock and R&B bands as well as performing as a vocal soloist and section leader at various local churches in the Hartford area. Graduate studies have included certification as a Kodaly music specialist, child vocal development, classical and modern electronic music composition as well as studio production and engineering.
