The reasons I want to do music is because I fell in love with music at a tender age, my dad played a lot of music in the house mostly oldies, then he went through a faze were he was playing a lot of Bob Marley tapes and I got hooked on that stuff. But my true calling came to me in Korea when I was telling my roommate about all the things I have been through. My roommate suggested that I should make my stories into rhymes, so I started writing in 2003, and then I started rapping in 2004. People say my rhymes are hot and I need to go to the studio and start recording so I took their advice and I started going to various studios trying to get on, it hasn't been easy for me coming up in the music business but I prevail. But its super hard earning a nickel while spending a dime, and the fact that I got to be careful when my music is based on, or derives from murders, politics, narcotics and violence. When I make it in the music business I don't just want to be another rapper I want to be a businessman, I want to grow and expand because there is no limits to what I can be and what I can accomplish.
