His mother's family (The Abrams Family) has a long history of music, and Jason has continued to follow in the family's footsteps. The piano was his first instrument, but he now plays guitar, bass, drums, trumpet, Irish whistles, and more. Jason was influenced as a child by the music of his parents; bands like Blood, Sweat and Tears, Harry Chapin, and Tom T. Hall. He continued to grow musically as a young man by listening to the Beatles, The Eagles, Chicago, and eighties synth-pop groups. Today his main inspiration for both music and lyrics comes from groups like Chicago, U2, Sting, and Coldplay. He has performed across the United States and Canada but mainly plays local venues in Hamilton, Ontario. Jason Silver records his own music in his home studio, and markets it online. They were released through iTunes and made available on MySpace. In six months, Jason Silver's MySpace 'friends' rose to over 11,000 fans, and he got as many as 700 plays per day.
