The resensation of music selected here is intended to evoke that feeling. This recording is dedicated to the memory of Andres Segovia; to James Norris, my first teacher and mentor who taught me as much about life as music; to the memory of my parents; and especially to my dear wife, Virginia - my companion, muse and great love. Thanks to Tamara for her skillful means; to brother Bill for his constant prodding; to Karla and Amber for the goodness of the past, and to Peter Rowan, a fellow traveler. Bio: Robert Burns began very early the study of the guitar, and gave his first concert performance at age 16 as opener for Louis Armstrong. Burns developed rapidly under the tutelage of James Norris of Chicago, pursued studies at the Wisconsin and San Francisco Conservatories, and was privileged to work with the legendary Andres Segovia, both in the USA and in Spain. Burns has had a full career in teaching, as well as performing for diverse personalities and organizations such as the United Nations, Elizabeth Taylor, the Dalai Lama, as well as events at the Bohemian Grove, numerous California wineries, and for many embassies. Burns carries on the unique tradition of Segovia, the most influential guitarist of the 20th century. Robert Burns resides on the beautiful Mendocino Coast in Northern California.
