Also, music is a huge outlet for my experiences. there is no better way for me to share those experiences than through writing music. Even though i have my own, unique style, I am always trying to stretch myself and branch into new writing styles in order to be fresh and exciting. My music is a direct link to my feelings, some of which are extremely private. I find that each time I perform my music, I leave everything out there for the audience. I am exhausted when I'm through, but proud that I have held nothing back. This, my second CD, "up to something" will be supported by National and local press, a college, bar and cafe tour in the fall." In short, you're gonna' want to check this one out.
