Details: Originally from Seattle, Brian's music is spirited and engaging, accompanied by lyrics that are smooth and authentic. A fun mix of vintage pop and indie rock have fused together in Fennell's much anticipated release, "Safety Songs". The feel of the record ranges from upbeat and poppy, to slow and epic. From tasteful string arrangements and warm acoustics to driving piano and crunchy electrics, Safety Songs has something for virtually every listener. Over the last several years, Brian has been playing an increasing amount of solo and band shows around the greater Seattle area to an ever growing fan base. Playing large coffee shops to standing room only crowds, or small bars to fifty people, he has been charming area audiences with his highly accessible personality, entertaining live show, and powerful sound. After recording his first full-length album, Fennell joined with three of his close friends to form a band. Still without a name, this band offers a powerful and high-energy live show, but still manages to incorporate an intimate singer- songwriter quality that leaves listeners satisfied, but wanting more. With a sound as multi-format as Brian Fennell's, the sky is literally the limit for him and his band in years to come.
