If forced to use one word to describe their music it must be eclectic. Recognizable influences include, but aren't limited to, rock, blues, country, and American folk music. The influences are unpinned by a Latin-flavored beat that results in a danceable yet powerful musical mixture. Their debut full-length CD, Mid-Life Crisis, has received accolades for its diversity. This collection of songs ranges from "good-time music" to introspective and haunting studies of life in our times; the musical brothers tackle some tricky subjects while interjecting a healthy dose of humor. The Abu-Garcia's aren't just a recording band either. They take their jobs as entertainers seriously, while not appearing to take themselves seriously at all. The end result is always an evening of light-hearted mischief and great music. Their motto seems to be "keep smiling, it's contagious." The grooves and melodies certainly are!
