

Mp3 Beccata - Rush

Ambient electronica influenced by the visual beauty of our solar system. 8 MP3 Songs ELECTRONIC: Ambient, ELECTRONIC: Dance Details: Much to everyones pleasure and/or aural pain, Beccata started playing her parents rickety old piano in any way she could at a very early age (so early she probably couldnt tell the difference between a piano and a rocking chair), and at six began official lessons, performing classics such as Mary Had a Little Lamb and Twinkle-Twinkle Make It Stop. Much to the dismay of her neighbors, she started playing the oboe (I dont know what that is either) at twelve, and began writing music and lyrics shortly after that out of a need to validate her average teenaged existence. By the time this native New Yorker was 18 she was so surprised that she hadnt yet become the next Britney Spears that she auditioned for the Eastman School of Music, somehow got accepted, and attended for the next three years. Somewhere around this part of the story, Beccata began her experimentation with electronic music and qualudes- well, maybe half of that is true, and eventually decided that distributing music over the internet was probably a good idea, because her friends told her so. (If they told her to jump off a bridge, however, she might have to take some qualudes before she agreed. She may be easy, but shes not stupid). In other news, Beccatas music has been compared to the music of Aphex Twin, Tortoise, Royksopp and many more. But enough about her, lets talk about you: Thanks for stopping by, take a listen if you please, and leave an amusing review or two, because it is so nice to read them over a carton of ice cream and some cheez-its at three in the morning.
