A combination Synthesizer with Didgeridoo and classic 808 drum sounds with unusual instruments like the Berimbau. There is visualisation style vocals on three tracks to add to the journey. This album is both chilled and upbeat and hits a tempo peak of 145 12 MP3 Songs WORLD: Australian, ELECTRONIC: Trance Details: I have been a Didgeridoo player for about 10 years and recorded Well now ya here! back in 1999 but only released it in 2004. I Teach at a world famous school part time and have performed at places like Earls Court in London, England. Workshops and teaching to school children is another thing that I do. I have also made TV appearances on BBC2 in an award winning film about the life of poet Philip Larkin. I am also a freelance composer with my own studio. I also supply images for other artists sleeve design. I first started to play the Didgeridoo as I was keen to explore it's rhythmic sound, as the Didgeridoo is so haunting this combination works well with a live band in all genres of music.
