Is it possible to merge rock, pop and a healthy dose of studio experimentation? This album promises just that overlaid with smart lyrics and professional production. 11 MP3 Songs ROCK: Modern Rock, ROCK: Emo Details: The Green Revolution are a 4-piece rock band from Yuma, AZ. They balance a love for creative song writing and studio experimentation with a love for straight-ahead rock and catchy pop. They do not sound like The Beatles or Radiohead, but incorporate those bands' same attitudes in creating music which is to defy genre and employ imagination in everything they do. "As Far as Twenty Pesos Can Go" is an eclectic mix of music underscoring smart, insightful and sometimes even humorous lyrics.

Johnny Cash (Entropy, The Band Plays on for Those Lost), The Pixies (Mi Rita), and Bob Dylan (Jack Kerouac was a Filthy Liar) are just a few influences that lie just below the surface of many songs, while others chart territory completely unique. A few reviews from peers: "I love music like this, so different and distinct from everything else out there you know?" - Nicholas Williams (singer/songwriter from Columbus, Ohio) "I really like the music. Very nice job with the songwriting and recording. You guy's have developed a great overall sound that's pretty signature." - John Candido (singer/songwriter from Laguna Beach, CA) "Very cool and refreshing music. I think it has personality." - N from Toy (band from Brescia, Lombardia Italy)
