Born and raised in Altadena/Pasadena, CA, the two rappers knew of each other growing up but didn't become friends until later in the game. RJ was producing and recording in his home studio, when AB came looking for tracks. Before long, they began working together, feeding off of each other as they grew in their craft, creating lyrics, and forming a rap style based on similar personalities. AB RJ eventually became best friends and business partners. Musical Style AB RJ's music has an energetic, hip-hop edge aimed at clubs, car systems, and radio with the intention of making people move and get hooked on the songs. The lyrical style is "fun-playa"-a fun feel mixed with comedy and that 'player' edge. AB RJ rap about what they see, do, and enjoy talking about... mostly women and sex! The lyrics are cunning funny, and full of personality. With all of this rolled into their unique style and delivery, AB RJ verbally and melodically entertains their listeners. Background AB grew up as a popular athlete. He played football in high school and went to college on a full-scholarship to BYU. He made All-Conference and All-American and had big plans to enter the NFL. After a leg injury in his senior year, AB was sadly forced to give up his first love (even after some workouts with NFL teams.) He then turned to his second love, music, and found himself engulfed with it. He quickly began writing and honing his skills as a rapper. RJ's musical talent extends into his family where his grandfather played trumpet in Duke Ellington's band, and his grandmother made a living by performing in many Hollywood plays and live shows. RJ's mother raised him on an assortment of music: old-school R&B, rock, funk, soul, etc. As a child RJ performed in the mirror, and by high school, he was winning talent shows as a member of a local dance group. He got into singing and rapping as well, finding a creative outlet through music. Eventually, Johnson put together a production and recording studio where he currently records for Full Range and other artists. RJ has his sight set on being the next star to blow up.
