A chill-out blend of piano and electronica designed with the souls of Chopin and Pink Floyd in mind. 10 MP3 Songs ELECTRONIC: Chill out, NEW AGE: Solo Instrumental Details: Live at Bliss Gardens is a product of my practices and performances throughout the past year and a half in Second Life. Unlike, Fidelio or Ontogeny, this blends the two playing styles that I've developed over the years. As a result the piano and synthesizers play with and against each other as a style of its own. The album motif is that of a garden. The performance itself is from April 28th, 2007 at the Bliss Gardens designed by Luna Bliss of Second Life. Jaynine Scarborough had invited me to be a part of a wonderful group of musicians who would play there weekly. The virtual lush landscapes of green leaves and blue waterfalls somehow was able to create an excellent atmosphere for the music itself to grow from week to week. I do hope you enjoy it. -- Classically trained, Kourosch Dini explores new ground in the realms of piano as well as electronic music. His interest lies in the discovery of various emotions in phrases be they composed in the baroque era or in present day dance clubs. He has done score for short films, both recorded and live and has collaborated on work presented at the 4Arts Gallery, Landmark Art Gallery, the Fast Forward Film Festival and Chicago Indymedia. Presently, he spends most of his performance times in the game of Second Life as Kourosch Eusebio.
