An industrious equate immingle of chintzy ska, and metallic that will kick your ass, annoy your parents, and turn on your hot ass small sister. 12 MP3 Songs ROCK: Punk, ROCK: Ska You Don't Know The Half of It ! Songs Details: The Afterglows formed during the turn of the century, using their collective love of music to fuel their artistic ventures. They began playing small venues, instantly delighting fans with their industrious immingle of Punk, Ska, Pop, and Metal, just to name a few genres. In Fall 2000, they recorded a 10-song EP entitled Burnin' Down the House with noted area musician and producer, Frank Phobia. After relieving their original bass player of his post midway through the sessions, Drummer Mike Mollura and Guitarist/Vocalist Hiester Lotz added Bassist/Vocalist Imix Shish to the mix. There was instant karma between the three, setting off a creative burst that shows no signs of letting up until the turn of the next century. The boys practiced their horse whooping behinds off, adding droves of new songs to their already blazing live set. They started things off by quickly recording and self-releasing the EP Running Out of Options, followed up by their self release of Burnin' Down the House, in March of 2001. As spring arrived, the band appeared at Vertigofest IV alongside such regional favorites as Wolfpac, Anthrophobia, Eastcide, and Spinebelt. The trio also were featured on the drp records compilation Gimme the Medicine Volume 1., showcasing two songs on the "Placebo" CD of the 2-CD compilation. During the past year the trio has also played alongside such noted acts as the Dead 50's, Total Chaos, Mary Prankster, ECP, Closer Than Kin, Lisa Christ Superstar, and Big Green Limousine. After stepping back into the recording studio with producer Frank Phobia and engineer Mike Radka in late summer/early fall, the Afterglows began preparing their first independent-label release. In conjunction with drp records, the group eagerly anticipates the January 8th, 2002 release of You Don't Know the Half of It, an 11-song disc sure to keep you begging for more. And more is always on the way, you can count on that.
