***** Latest exclusive CD review from International Online Magazine: An album of such immensely proportionate platinum-like quality should be revered as a treasure and should never ever be used as a coffee mug coaster. The contributing members involved in the creation and completion of this magnificent album deserve a firm but forceful pat on the back for having the decency to share what was writhing around in that deep mind of Eric's. Ladies and gentleman it is my esteemed pleasure to introduce to you the reason why people like Eric Chiryoku become world famous motion picture soundtrack composers!!! This remarkable album opens up with Winter Story is not only the opening track to the doors of this album or to the beginning of a season filled with white flakes of bliss but an opening to a truly wondrous state of mind. This track that is so eloquently caressing my senses is arranged with a talent that far surpasses the reaches of any sane thought. The extraordinary flute handle and the benevolence of the piano playing is enough to make a person feel the need to seek out refuge from this at times overwhelming world in a place where no one could find you for as long as you didn't want to be found. Season Romance is the difference between the world we live in and the world we sleep to dream of. It is without a doubt good for your entire well being, it's as though it has the power of healing any negative thoughts that may be bombarding your existence. The violin is a magnificent instrument even when it's just leaning against a wall waiting to be picked up and played but it takes real talent to accent an already perfect piece of music, accelerating its integrity. Life Journey radiates orchestral splendor while taking this listener on a ride of mixed emotional cascades of sound. The beauty of the surprising flood of unbridled thrust that fuels through this track's eccentric flow is astonishing at its best. The violin playing had such a strong grip on my tears it held them at bay until the time for the fall was at hand and then, without any haste, the levee was opened to reveal the salty sea-like water that filled my penetrated soul. What a wonderful piece of music! Cherish reminds me of the longing that I have felt for the loss of love in its every form and the way it rips your heart from your chest's comfort. The emotion that is felt by this track's compositional creator is so powerful that it feels like a first hand experience passed through to all who listen so that they may take comfort in that they are never alone in their states of longing, dismay, and sorrow. Meadow Whisper... its like actually laying in a vast field of bright green blades of grass, seeing the occasional perfectly sprouted daisy swaying back and forth by the gentle force of a warm sweet-smelling breeze. While you look up at the sky and take great enjoyment in discerning whether or not the white puffy cloud formations are those of a herd of elephants running through the fields of an African land, or of toads sitting on the lily pads of a beautiful crystal clear pond. It's a truly beautifully realised collage of sound! Remembrance speaks an unspoken language of sheer eloquence. The graceful movement of the violin strings being pressed against and through your ears is magnificently accented with astounding pianistic integrity. The two lovely melodies merge and bind together to form a marriage of emotionally enthralling majesty. Then we have Morning Breeze as it throws any sense of not belonging to every part of the world to the air above. Its romantically inducing feel is such that you are drawn into deep thoughts of life, the kind of thoughts that reminisce of all of the wonderful experiences in life that make it worth living. Embracing Moment could very well be the track that could describe the moment in a film where you can see two people together in everything enjoying a moment of complete and utter blissful splendor. Two people who have not a care in the world for anyone outside themselves for that stretch of time. A beautiful track is a beautiful track... and there's no two ways about it! Sweet Memories are something we all hold dear in our hearts. What a wonderful depiction of the niceness associated with feeling something joyous. It is without a doubt a perfect example of what immense talent was involved in every aspect of this album from every contributing factor and person. The piece is followed by the last track on the album; The Song of Nature. This exquisite track sends a very powerful message of suggestion to those who are not concerned with the issues in which they do not feel affects them when they do in fact affect us all. Global warming is an issue that needs urgent attention and for this track to be dedicated to this growing and very real concern is admirable to say the least. It marks the closure of a level of enjoyment that will forever be in my mind as a remarkable and unforgettable experience. --International Online Music, Elley Wilson - September 05 2005

***** Music Review: Eric Chiryoku belongs surely to the most excellent Instrumentalists of today whose great strength is to create cinematic sound pearls for listeners worldwide! His compositions are enjoyable for fans of New Age and also film music, carefully worked out arrangements of a lovely power, and characteristically for this masters' work are the fluent character and emphasis on warm strings and lovely flute tunes. "Morning Breeze" is song no. 7 from Eric's album "Winter Story". A feast for the listener with particularly beautiful keyboards and slow attack string atmospheres... and this actually could be a soundtrack for a Love movie! Perhaps you also can notice a very easy similarity to the heart-warming style of Kitaro? In any case Eric Chiryoku lures you to dream with these friendly melodies like flowers to you. This is a beautiful and perfect produced musical breeze not only for the morning hour which will touch your heart! And this humble statement of mine also applies to Eric Chiryoku's whole album "Winter Story"! Ready for a romance? ericchiryoku.com/

Review: Winter Story, this piece is so rich....the flute sounds so haunting and even a touch melancholy. The melody itself is pure beauty...stunning music, beautifully played composed and arranged. It's so delicate, there's emotions running all the way through it. This music deserves to be heard by the whole world, i see this as a movie piece definitely. I'm totally lost for words, it's simply amazing. This is one of the best artists i've heard to date, recording in modern times. What a nice way to join the writing staff at R Cat!!!! This composition blew me away! Within 5 seconds of listening to 'Cherish' I embarked on a wonderful journey, a journey that I really needed to complete. With every spoken piano key, and every whispered violin stroke, this lovely little composition carried me to a place within my heart from where I eventually drifted high into the clouds. For 4 minutes and 16 seconds there.. I had escaped reality. The three notes I have tattooed on my left shoulder comes from a song by Mike Oldfield called Wonderful Land. I chose it because, to me, it represented my life, and I'm sure this beautiful piece will do the same for a lot of people young and old and whether they want the score tattooed or not. Thank you Eric! Review by Heather ,The International Online Magazine - 20 May 2005

----- Track Review: Life Journey, At present I like to search for heavenly music. And I think I have found some today - in Singapore. What distinguishes an one-man-orchester of a full orchester? Eric Chiryoku proves that nowadays there is hardly a difference - the magical, clear piano and soft string sections lead to a sometimes sensible, sometimes bombastic arrangement with the most lovely, different colorings which can be expected from an exciting piece of film music. I couldn't recognize any clear influences of other artists... Eric mentioned Kitaro and Yanni, I would agree with elements of Kitaro a bit, but the perfect use of original orchestral samples and the romantic classic turns and primarily the magnificent arranged solo violins are high above typical "New Age music". Although "Life Journey" includes very melancholy sections which definitely will touch you - we are listening to an excellent composition of fully positive energy. Eric Chiryoku invites you to a really beautiful "life journey" Reviewed by: Syngularity, The International Online Magazine

----- Track Review: Meadow Whisper, This is some of the BEST music I've heard on this site or anywhere. Beautiful Classical orchestrations. I love this!!! I've always loved the Classical artists. And this is a new generation. These orchestrations are breathtaking!!! I want to buy this artist's CD. It's wonderful. HIGHLY RECOMMENDED Great work. ----- Track Review: Life Journey, A truly magnificent piece Ever since I first heard this music, I cry each time I listen to it! Maybe it's all the minor keys, the violins, or simply the striking melody. This music certainly is so very powerful and emotionally charged, that it ranks amongst my all time favorites tracks of ALL the music I've heard on the internet.
