Twisted in the way that the vocals are muffled with a seething undercurrent playing off beautifully against the flawless piano. String integrity. Reminds me of some material from Radiohead's Kid A album. Also reminiscent of The Cure's Seventeen Seconds album in parts, but with those sunkist West Coast vox over the top it actually permeates with greater melancholy. Powerful work." ----'sunfly' from St. Albans, Hertfordshire, United Kingdom "Original start for a very original song. Like a segment from a rock opera. Nice piano work, and great implementation of percussion and related effects. Really different alternative piece, with classical elements. It keeps your attention, and that's getting harder to find in this genre. I really like the intimate vocal moments..." ----'ERIKproductions' of Hamilton, Ontario, Canada for "MISSING" "...I've been hooked from the begining... love this song. ok, this is good work, good movement, words. you should shop this stuff around to labels. sounds like the really good old peter gabriel stuff. this is some of the best stuff ive heard around here. kudos, i'll download to listen to again. love the orchestral/epic ending. ----'musicdrone'
