Jhai has been involved with music since the age of 12. he grew up in brooklyn, New York and listened to early success artists such as Lionel Richie, Shalamar, DeBarge, Jennifer Holiday, Phyllis Hyman and mentor Babyface (The Deele Days). He also contributed to the growth of hip-hop in his community performing as both emcee and dj. He studied piano and voice as he entered into high school and then pursued voice in the school choir and gospel choir. Upon graduation, he continued performing gospel and writing lyrics. Jhai also sought vocalists to perform some of his original pieces. During his 20s' he would find work as a session keyboardist at several brooklyn studios. He also found time to meet recording artists Tamia, Toni Braxton, Cissy Houston, Will Downing and Tasha Holiday. Then as fate would have it, he would meet and talk with his unknowing mentor, babyface at a Xmas album record signing in NYC. After leaving Mr. Edmonds with a demo, he continued developing his writing and production skills. In the late 90's he would meet Chuck Gamble (Philadelphia Records) who compared his crooning skills to that of legendary Billy Paul of Me and Mrs. Jones fame. In the turn of the century, Jhai saw an opportunity to learn about touring as he traveled with 2005 Reggae Artist Grammy Winning Toots and the Maytals. With over 20 years in the music industry, this album is just another step in his evolution.
