"beautiful" follows with a straight forward eleven eleven assault of overdriven fender amps and simple melody lines. it's lyrically about the frustration of feeling helpless and letting go of comfort zones. the next track in line, "paper cut," was also recorded during the "head" sessions. it's predominantly lead singer jeff giuliani layering rich synth lines over a flangey arpeggio with vocals mixed in a missile silo. the closing track once again finds jeff alone in the studio with nothing but a few hours left of darkness before the sun rises along with too many cups of coffee. the resulting track "voiceless a" is a my bloody valentine layer-fest of watery guitars and backward vocals that ends the ep in perfect form. eleven eleven is currently touring the nation supporting "the unlovable ep."
