Muse Recordings debut album, Marcs Project, resonates with a fresh, new sound seasoned with a vintage vibe for genuine music enthusiasts. This honest, uncompromised R&B/Neo Soul compilation is sure to feed the souls of listeners with songs that address the everyday aspects of love, life, and spirit. Marcus Collins and Mike Muse (who runs the satellite office in New York) decided to launch an independent record label after obtaining engineering degrees from the University of Michigan, pushing forward their belief that music has a strong voice in our society. Our goal isnt to follow whats hot right now, instead, we aspire to set our own trends, says Collins, who produced and co-wrote Marcs Project. Were musicians first, and we care about preserving this art form. Were all about making authentic music that is relevant to todays listeners. Marcs Project features dynamic, classically trained vocalists who cross the genre boundaries of R&B, Hip-Hop, Jazz and Gospel while delivering with soul, style and sincerity. The album has so far received reviews such as ...a complete album; a no-skipper and great lyrics sung with emotion, assisted by wonderful instrumentation. It all ties back to our mission " we want the music to speaks for itself. The music is the message. Marcs Project has shared stages with some of todays top national artists, such as Keysha Cole, B5, Jagged Edge, and Lil Mo, in the Rhythm n Rims Tour presented by Sprite. Marcs Project also stole the stage at The Daimler-Chrysler Arts, Beats Eats, Michigans largest four-day festival with over a million guests, introducing metro-Detroit residents to talented artists and musicians around the country. With a buzz spreading like wildfire, the success of Marcs Project has only just begun. Collins, head of production for the label, was chosen winner by celebrity judges including producer-turned

American Idol personality Randy Jackson and contemporary jazz act Fourplay, amongst 2,000 entries at Yamaha International Music Production Contest, with one of the songs off the album, Youll Never Know. Muse Recordings not only seeks to take artistic risks with its music, but to be socially conscious as well. The label has teamed up with Sean P-Diddy Combs Citizens of Change initiative, Power Moves Inc., and international Grammy-winning recording artist Nelly during UofMs homecoming weekend to encourage students and alumni to vote. The release Marcs Project has signaled the return of classic soul music back to its home in the city of Detroit.
