Singer/ songwriter Adrian Roye fuses contemporary folk, soul, rock, and afro-beat to make an album of infectious yet intelligent music. 10 MP3 Songs FOLK: Modern Folk, ROCK: Acoustic Details: Adrian began making music at an early age, mostly by making up his own lyrics to songs on the radio or clanging on whatever piece of furniture was around. By the age of 11 he was writing fully formed songs and had begun to teach himself to play piano and read/write sheet music. After establishing himself in later years at annual school concerts and productions, Adrian went on to work on several projects. Some of his most notable ones were his experimental electro/ house/ lo-fi creations with Fred Lagergren (including "The Bird That Can't Fly"), and the short-lived rock band Capricorn Son who created quite a buzz on the live music scene at the time. Moving on from a brief searching of the soul, Adrian began to write and sing music that truly meant something to him. From Politics to the Planet, he explored them all while learning to play his favourite instrument -the Guitar and also the Djembe. After launching his new music with the now disbanded Unified Field Theory to local audiences, he went on to record his first full-length album "Welcome to One Man Town" at the end of 2004. Now alongside his long-time friend and fellow Singer/ songwriter Beth Dariti, he is building a solid fan base and playing gigs on a regular basis (also under the band name Astic Borders). Adrian is currently working on his second album, which is due out later this year.
