Rising Sun Reggae Band was founded and established by Delroy Headley, the current bandleader and manager, and Pierre Belony in 1993. They had a vision to put together a group of musicians that could deliver Reggae music to people from all over the world and who could not only entertain, but also captivate their audience while having fun. Finding a lead vocalist to complete their vision was taken under much consideration. Being a vocalist himself, Delroy wanted the group to be unique. Together, Delroy and Belony decided that a female lead vocalist would fit the bill. They went on a search to find this female, not just any female but one with style, personality and talent. This search led them to the one and only Andrea Williams, lead vocalist and public relation manager for the group. The band consists of eight musicians and a sound engineer: A Drummer, Bass player, Guitar player, two Keyboard players, Percussionist, two Lead vocalists and a background vocalist.
