Details: Jill Jambor, singer/songwriter, recently completed her debut album, "To Give You an Idea", and is quickly growing in the music communities of Southern Ontario. Her characteristic voice and inquisitive songwriting touches and intrigues audiences alike. An English major at York University, Jill embraces and exercises the craft of using words. Her songwriting shies from conventional platitudes, as she provokes sensibility through words in a sophisticated and innovative way. Jill Jambors 2009 album, "To Give You an Idea", reflects elements of traditional folk music, but also draws upon the discoveries of contemporary artists. The track, Mood for Love, is a painful testimony to refusing love, the anti love song. Others, like Getting in My Head, are also beautifully dramatic (accompanied by the entrancing sounds of James McKie on fiddle), yet so catchy they are likely to get in your head and stay there. To give you an idea.
