Ideas On Wordings For Your Baby Shower Invitation A baby shower is a party organized by close friends and family for expectant parents or, in some cultures, for new parents to celebrate the new arrival. From food, fun, party games and gifting, there's lots more that a baby shower involves, such as preparing a guest list and making out the invites to sending them out in time, which are the basics. 1. Those persons planning on hosting a special theme oriented baby shower party are advised to get the idea across in the wordings they choose for the party invitation or at least in the design of the card/letter as nothing conveys a theme better than to have guests show up in elements suited to the dcor and theme of the party! Besides, guests need to be aware of how casual or formal or funky even the setting is likely to be in order to decide on an appropriate dress code e.g. kiddy themes like teddy bear parties can have guests coming in casual or school-gear carrying soft- toys. 2. Use your favorite poems and quotations to invite guests for the baby shower event: get on the web for picking a variety of sample wordings as many websites have stock pictures and copywriting content you can use, from general party invites to special occasions lines you can customize for your baby shower. 3. If you know the gender of the coming baby, you can write out catchy party invitations using this knowledge and the names of the expectant parents; you can also add in nursery rhymes and kiddy song favorites on the cards besides mentioning the guest of honor and of course, date, timing and venue for the party. Remember to include the directions to reach an unfamiliar venue so guests are not at a loss on finding the right party spot and write or type the information neatly and clearly, in a large enough font. 4. For a surprise party for expectant parents, do remember to inform guests about this in advance so they don't let the cat out of the bag and keep it a secret. Also add in an RSVP or regrets only line in the party invite so you know how many people to cater for food and party favors and games, which also need to be planned and budgeted properly. 5. In case the expectant parents have put together a registry for gifts (items they may need or desire for the coming arrival), add this in to counter 'doubling' of gifts with everyone's presents getting due appreciation for being useful and practical. So, apart from deciding a theme for the baby shower that can be depicted in the way you weave the wordings for the invite and the graphics on the card besides conveying to guests the kind of attire most suitable for the party, you need to also remember to add in contact details such as phone number so guests can clarify points and confirm or cancel their availability for the occasion. Pay close attention to the design details of the invitation to impress and entice guests to attend the baby shower you are planning go with the theme or choose neutral, soft shades on the cards or pictures related to babies and cutesy things and above all, have fun!!
